The HUMOURIST.

From my Chambers in the Air, Nov. 26.

——— Quocunque volunt mentem auditoris agunto. HOR.

IT is neceſſary to premiſe that I am a Man of a peculiar odd Way of Thinking, and I ſhall conſequently make myſelf very merry at the Particularities of other People. Thus much for Preface.

The Humouriſt will never peſter the World with Incoherency or unnatural Occurrences, under the ſpecious Pretence of painting true Life or copying after Nature. Thus much for Self Praiſe.

If we make a Retroſpect into paſt Times, we ſhall find, that as the Morals of People varied, ſo did their Species of Writing. In the Days of monkiſh Ignorance, romantic Legends bore an univerſal Sway; and in the happy Times of good Queen Beſs, the World was joyouſly entertained with Fairy Land, and Tales of Chivalry; Spencer is my Teſtimony, and St. Philip's Arcadia confirms it: Then it was (as Milton ſneeringly expreſſes it) their Art

——— ——— Chief Maſtery to diſſect,
With long and tedious Havoc, fabled Knights
In Battle feign'd.
——— ——— Or to deſcribe Races and Games;
Or tilting Furniture, emblazon'd Shields,
Impreſſes quaint, Capariſons and Steeds;
Baſes and tinſel Trappings, gorgeous Knights
At Jouſt and Tournament; then marſhall'd Feaſts
Serv'd up in Halls with Sewers and Seneſchals.

In the Reign of James I. the People were all ſcared at imaginary Ghoſts and headleſs Apparitions, with Tales of Witches ſuck'd by ram Cats, and Devils ſmoaking Tobacco.

The Reſtoration, amongſt other of its happy Conſequences, introduced a certain Gaieté de Cœur, an Eaſe and Familiarity, and all Things ſeem'd to breathe the Spirit ——— ——— Of Love and amorous Delight;

From this Moment I date the Stony-heartedneſs of pretty Miſſes to their languiſhing Admirers, and the glorious Opportunity for plotting Wives to bambouzle their jealous pated Huſbands.

Thus have I curſorily run over the various Taſtes of Mankind in the former Ages; and therefore cannot avoid mentioning that reigning one of theſe Days, Novel writing without Reaſon, and Lies without a Meaning.

If then the Humouriſt is ſo happy as to avoid theſe Errors, and is capable to ſtrike out ſome few Lights, or keep in a due and entertaining Medium between them, the Satisfaction will amply recompence the Trouble, and tend both to pleaſe the Writer and amuſe the Reader.

The utmoſt Aim of my Compoſitions ſhall be directed to pleaſe; and if I now and then chance to tour uncommon Heights, the World muſt underſtand that I am improving the Method of Writing, and that my Habitation is the Air.

I am an aerial Spirit; and as an inducement to the World to read my Paper, they may ſhortly expect a Preſent of my Picture, which, like the Statue of Mercury in the Fable, ſhall be thrown into the Bargain.

London, Sept. 1. They write from Edinburgh, that the ſucceſs of the Scots ſhips ſent this year on the Greenland fiſhery is as follows, viz. Six from Leith, 25 whales and a half; two from Aberdeen, 7; one from Dundee, 4; one from Borrowſtounneſs, 5; two from Dunbar, 8; and two from Glaſcow, 10 whales. A third ſhip belonged to the laſt mentioned place was ſent this year to Davis's Straits, and is not yet return'd.

The fleet of obſervation will conſiſt of two ſhips of ſixty guns, three of fifty, two of forty, and one of twenty, beſides two ſloops of ſixteen, with four tenders.

We hear that 10 ſhips are already taken up for the Greenland fiſhery, for the ſervice of the enſuing year.

Some days ago arrived diſpatches of importance from Mr. Keen, the Britiſh miniſter at the court of Madrid, in relation to the diſagreement between the guarda coſtas in the Bays of Campeachy and Honduras, and our dealers in logwood in the Weſt-Indies, which, however, was like to be ſoon brought to an accommodation.
